Bethann Merkle: HERE, IN THE CHAT: ONE REACTION/THOUGHT/TAKE-AWAY SO FAR...
Laurie Anderson: I am fascinated by the idea that are plot types in earth science stories!
Alice Hotopp: The importance of alignment between values and elements of story
Kristy Hopfensperger (she/her): there are many steps and a bit challenging
Danelle Angeline Baronia: How can we get more opportunities to tell our story? How can we captivate a larger audience?
Mary Beth Kolozsvary: it is getting me to think in different ways
Kristy Hopfensperger (she/her): I liked the values too!
Bria Pope: i like the google docs idea. great way for everyone to share
Susana Mateos: cycles and the power of recognizing the leverage points to shift the cycles
Monica Harmon: if there have always been stories, there have always been challenges, which is weirdly reassuring
Susana Mateos: Reacted to "I am fascinated by t..." with 👍
David Malcolm: It's exciting to think about science as storytelling/problem solving
Mary Beth Kolozsvary: different perspectives ... thinking from other people's perspectives
Martha Inouye: You have broken it down really nicely (thanks!), and yet I still feel challenged by creating a complete "product" aligned to these steps.
Laurie Anderson: I also like the three Ms - great thing to remember!
Susana Mateos: Reacted to "if there have always..." with ❤
Tracy Gartner: We often find ourselves engaging with those of similar values – takes specific effort to reach out

Community-Engaged Learning to Broaden the Impact of Applied Ecology -
Alice Hotopp: Dr. Jelks – Is there a part of your work that gathers stories from community members about their personal experiences with the watershed and with the research? I loved the video and it would be great to hear more stories!

Susana Mateos: I saw the google doc had session 1 resources and now they are gone from doc. Will there be additional sessions on this topic?

Bethann Merkle: @Susana Mateos – I'll get those updated. 😊 I realized they were hold-over materials from a different topic.
